TRIMCO GROUP

Code of Business Conduct and Ethics

version 2025.1
updated February 2025

MESSAGE FROM THE CEO

To All Directors, Officers, and Employees of Trimco Group

As a growing global company, one thing that has not changed is TRIMCO's commitment to operating with the highest ethical standards. It has always been and remains our policy that all our activities should be conducted with the utmost honesty and integrity and in full compliance with all legal and regulatory requirements.

The enclosed Code of Business Conduct and Ethics (the "CoC"), which has been endorsed by TRIMCO's Board of Directors, sets out the commitments we all must make as part of the TRIMCO team. We urge you to read it carefully.

The CoC does not cover every situation you may encounter while at TRIMCO and that is not its purpose. Rather, the CoC sets forth basic principles and standards you must adhere to. When in doubt, please refer any questions to your manager or the Legal & Compliance team (or the Chair of the Board in the case of directors).

Thank you for your continued dedication to TRIMCO and for your commitment to upholding the standards set forth in the CoC.

Yours truly,

HIGHLIGHTS

These highlights are for summary purposes only. For more detailed information on each of these items read the full CoC.

Protecting TRIMCO's assets, resources, and data

We often have sensitive confidential information about TRIMCO, other companies, our customers and investors, our directors, officers, and employees; preserving the integrity of this information is vital to our business and reputation and is necessary to meet our obligations under data protection laws.

Electronic communications relating to business activities may not be conducted through electronic communication systems that have not been specifically approved for business activities, including (among others) personal email accounts, personal text messaging, non-approved chat forums, and social media.

Accuracy of books and records and public disclosures

We should take care that our books and records are accurate and that all our business transactions are properly authorized. We have duties to our shareholders and must ensure that our communications and other disclosures to external parties are true and accurate.

Duties to stakeholders

Our reputation is everything and we should act responsibly in dealings with our securityholders, customers, investors, suppliers, other stakeholders, and competitors.

Communications and media

In this digital era, be careful in your written communications made over company information systems, such as emails, as this is a permanent record. You must also ensure that your online activities, including your use of social media, are appropriate and reflect well on TRIMCO.

Conflicts of interest and personal behavior

TRIMCO is a global brand and as a representative of TRIMCO your personal behavior must be consistent with our values. Therefore, please be aware your personal interests may conflict with or appear to conflict with the interests of TRIMCO.

Positive work environment

We value diversity and we should all do our part to maintain a respectful work environment where everyone feels safe, included, and productive. Our success is dependent on establishing a workplace culture free from discrimination, violence, harassment, and other negative influences.

Compliance with laws, rules, regulations, and policies

We operate in many countries and are subject to different laws, rules, and regulations. You need to pay attention to the laws that apply to your activities so that you can comply with them. Ignorance of the law is never an excuse for non-compliance.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Why do we have a CoC?

The CoC is a guide for how you should behave as a TRIMCO team member. Preserving our corporate culture and ensuring compliance with legal, regulatory, and fiduciary duties are vital to the organization and following the CoC helps us do that.

Who must follow the CoC?

All employees, directors, officers, and temporary workers of TRIMCO, its wholly-owned subsidiaries, and any controlled affiliates who have not adopted their own Code of Conduct or policies that are consistent with the provisions of this CoC, as further described in the INTRO of the CoC.

What are your responsibilities?

You have two responsibilities. First, you must follow every aspect of the CoC and certify your commitment each year. Second, if you suspect someone may be violating the CoC or the policies referred to herein, you have an obligation to report it. To make a report, follow the REPORTING section of the CoC.

How will I know if there is a problem?

The CoC attempts to deal with the most common issues that you may encounter, but it cannot address every question that may arise. When you are not sure what to do, ask yourself the following questions:

- Is it illegal?
- Does it feel like the wrong thing to do?
- Would you feel uncomfortable if others knew about it?
- Will it have the potential to create a negative perception of you or TRIMCO?
- Do you have a personal interest that has the potential to conflict with TRIMCO's interest?

If you answer "yes" to any of these questions your proposed conduct may violate the CoC, and you should ask for help.

How should I ask for help?

If you have questions about the CoC, any policies or guidelines referred to herein, or about the best course of action to take in a particular situation, you should seek guidance from your manager, HR or Legal & Compliance team. (Please see the Contact information section).

What if I would like to make an anonymous report?

You can report anonymously by using TRIMCO's whistleblower scheme, Ethic's Hotline, which is operated by an independent third-party. If you choose to make an anonymous report, your anonymity will be protected to the fullest extent possible as permitted by law. Keep in mind, however, that maintaining your anonymity may limit TRIMCO's ability to investigate your concerns.

What are the consequences for violating the CoC?

Violations of the CoC or the policies and/or guidelines incorporated herein can vary in their consequences. If you are an employee, it could result in a reprimand or other disciplinary actions, including the termination of your employment. If you are a director, a violation may necessitate your resignation and termination of your directorship. Certain violations of the CoC also contravene applicable laws and therefore can have severe consequences outside of TRIMCO. Depending on your actions, failing to comply with the CoC could lead to civil or criminal prosecution, which could result in substantial fines, penalties and/or imprisonment.

INTRO

Scope

This CoC applies to all employees, directors, officers, temporary workers including but not limited to consultants, contractors etc. who work on our premises (collectively, “you” or “employee”) of

- Trimco Group and its wholly-owned subsidiaries, and
- any other controlled affiliate of Trimco Group collectively with Trimco Group and its wholly-owned subsidiaries “TRIMCO,” “we,” “us,” “our”), unless such controlled affiliate has adopted its own CoC that are consistent with the provisions of this CoC¹.

Purpose

TRIMCO is committed to operating with the highest ethical standards. All our activities should be conducted with the utmost honesty and integrity and in full compliance with all legal and regulatory requirements.

This CoC sets forth key principles and standards, as well as key supporting policies and procedures, with respect to addressing ethics and behavior in our business, which should guide your conduct.

Standards of Business Conduct

TRIMCO seeks to foster and maintain a reputation for honesty, openness, trust, integrity and professionalism. The confidence and trust placed in TRIMCO by our customers and investors is something we value greatly and endeavor to protect. In many respects, our reputation is our most vital business asset. Accordingly, all our activities should be conducted with honesty and integrity and in compliance with applicable legal and regulatory requirements.

We have adopted the CoC and related policies and procedures to preserve our culture and to ensure compliance with legal, regulatory, and fiduciary requirements applicable to our activities. We expect and require that you meet the letter and spirit of the CoC (and related policies and procedures).

Communication

This CoC is communicated to all TRIMCO employees. In locations where English is not an official language, this CoC is communicated in local language to the employees by the local entity that employs them. However, this English version will always prevail.

¹ Where a controlled affiliate has adopted its own Code of Conduct and/or policies that are consistent with the provisions of this CoC, the controlled affiliate’s directors, officers, employees and temporary workers follow those policies, and, in case of a conflict, the terms of that Code of Conduct control. Where a controlled affiliate has not adopted their own Code of Conduct and/or other policies that are consistent with the provisions of this CoC, the controlled affiliate must review the CoC and the policies in the context of their business to ensure that the CoC and such policies are appropriate and address all legal and regulatory requirements and risks applicable to their business.

This CoC incorporates by reference all our other policies available here: TRM-Departments - Global Policies - All Documents. This includes, but is not limited, to our:

- Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption Policy
- Gift, Entertainment and Hospitality Policy
- Interacting With Public Officials Reference Guide
- Conflict of Interest Policy and Procedure
- SoMe Guidelines
- Legal Policy
- Human Rights Policy

which should be read in conjunction with the CoC and may incorporate other policies and programs from time to time when those policies and/or programs are adopted. Our local Staff Handbook does also always apply.

PRINCIPLES

Protecting TRIMCO's assets, resources, and data

TRIMCO's assets are to be used for legitimate business purposes only.

TRIMCO's assets are for business, not personal use. TRIMCO's assets span many categories. Assets can be physical, tangible goods, such as office supplies, furniture, computers or intangible items, such as intellectual property.

You have the responsibility to safeguard TRIMCO's assets from loss, damage, theft, misuse and waste. If you become aware that our assets are subject to such, or if you have questions about your proper use of them, you should speak with your manager or HR. TRIMCO's name including its corporate letterhead and logo, facilities and relationships and valuable assets and must only be used for authorized company business.

If you use TRIMCO's assets for personal benefit or are otherwise wasteful with TRIMCO's assets, you may be in breach of your duty to TRIMCO. You have a responsibility not to abuse company resources for reimbursement. Any requests for reimbursement for authorized company expenses must be for legitimate business expenses. If you are unsure whether a certain expense is legitimate, you should speak with your manager or refer the Staff Handbook.

Confidential information must be protected at all times.

We must protect confidential information in our possession both information about us and information about other companies, our customers and investors. Confidential information includes, but is not limited to, material of non-public information, all confidential memos, notes, lists, records, and other documents in your position, in hard and soft copy. All of these are to be delivered to TRIMCO promptly after your employment ceases or at any time upon TRIMCO's request, and your obligation to protect this information continues after you leave TRIMCO. You must protect hard and soft copies of confidential information that are removed from the office (e.g., to be worked with at home or at external meetings).

It is important to use discretion when discussing company business. This includes respecting information barrier protocols and discussing company business only with those individuals at TRIMCO that have a “need to know” the information. Additionally, be careful not to discuss company business in public places such as elevators, restaurants, and public transportation, when using your phone or email outside of the office, or in different available AI tools. You should also be careful not to leave confidential information in unattended conference rooms or in public places where others can access it. While at TRIMCO, if you become aware of confidential information about TRIMCO or another entity that you know or suspect has been inadvertently disclosed, seek guidance from your manager, HR, or Legal & Compliance before using or acting upon this information.

Personal data held by or on behalf of TRIMCO must be used in compliance with data protection laws.

TRIMCO collects personal data regarding individuals both inside and outside the organization where we have the lawful basis for doing so. This is necessary to effectively and efficiently administer and manage the operation of our business. Personal data includes, among other things, sensitive personal, medical and financial information. We should take all reasonable steps to only hold personal data for as long as we have a need to retain it.

Collection and use of personal data are subject to various legal and regulatory requirements. You must take all reasonable steps to ensure that personal data is kept confidential and accessed only by those individuals at TRIMCO that have a need to know this information to carry out their duties. In addition, if it is necessary to the conduct of business to disclose personal data to a third-party (e.g., so that a third-party may provide services to TRIMCO or acquire an asset or business of TRIMCO) then you must ensure that such transfer complies with applicable legal and regulatory requirements. This may include ensuring the third-party is subject to a written agreement which contains confidentiality obligations and, where relevant, other obligations which must be included under the data protection laws of certain jurisdictions in which we operate or have clients or investors. In all other cases, you may only disclose personal data pursuant to a legal or regulatory requirements.

In the ordinary course, TRIMCO transfers personal data between jurisdictions in which TRIMCO operates, including outside the European Economic Area (“EEA”) and the United Kingdom. When transferring personal data outside EEA and the United Kingdom, we will ensure it is permissible to do (e.g., consent has been given by the individual or an appropriate data transfer agreement has been signed), and we require you to do the same. In addition, you should ensure that the personal data is protected in a manner that is consistent with how personal data is protected by TRIMCO within these jurisdictions, and in any event in compliance with all applicable personal data protection laws.

You are responsible for ensuring that you understand and comply with our data protection/privacy policies.

Intellectual property belongs to TRIMCO.

During your employment, you may be involved in the creation, development, or invention of intellectual property (“IP”) such as concepts, methods, processes, inventions, confidential information and trade secrets, know-how, physical products, ideas, plans, programs, software, applications, code, works of authorship, trademarks, service marks and designs, alone or jointly with others, including but not limited to the improvement of existing IP belonging to TRIMCO. All such IP and the rights therein shall be owned by TRIMCO and your moral rights to such IP, if any, will be waived. You are responsible for cooperating with TRIMCO and providing all necessary assistance, including the preparation and execution of any necessary documentation such as assignments and applications to register rights before relevant government authorities on behalf of TRIMCO, to ensure that all IP and related rights become or are recognize as the exclusive property of TRIMCO.

The documents of TRIMCO must be preserved.

It is critical that you help preserve our business records, follow the guidelines set forth in any document retention policies and comply with related legal and regulatory requirements. If you are notified that your documents are relevant to an anticipated or pending litigation, investigation, or audit, you must follow the guidance set forth in the notification you receive from Finance or Legal & Compliance regarding retention of documents.

Accuracy of books and records and public disclosures

Ensure that the books and records of TRIMCO are complete and accurate and that all business transactions are properly authorized.

The books and records of TRIMCO must reflect all its transactions to permit the preparation of accurate financial statements. Employees must never conceal information from:

- an external auditor;
- an internal auditor; or
- an audit committee of TRIMCO.

In addition, it is unlawful for any person to fraudulently influence, coerce, manipulate, or mislead an external auditor of TRIMCO.

TRIMCO's contracts and agreements govern our business relationships. Because the laws governing contracts and agreements are numerous and complicated, we have put in place policies, e.g. Trimco Group Legal Policy, and procedures to ensure that any contract entered into by TRIMCO has the appropriate level of approval. As a result, employees who enter into contracts or agreements on behalf of TRIMCO must have proper authorization to do so and, prior to their execution, these documents must be reviewed by Legal & Compliance where required by policy or practice. If you are unsure whether you have proper authorization to enter into a contract on behalf of TRIMCO, please seek guidance from your manager or Legal & Compliance.

Ensure that TRIMCO provides full, true, and plain public disclosure.

All employees responsible for preparing TRIMCO's public disclosures or providing information as part of this process must ensure that public disclosures of information are made honestly and accurately. Employees must be aware of and report any of the following:

- fraud or deliberate errors in the preparation, maintenance, evaluation, review or audit of any financial statement or financial record;
- deficiencies in, or noncompliance with, internal accounting controls;
- Misrepresentations or false statements in any public disclosure document, such as annual and quarterly reports, prospectuses, information/proxy circulars and press releases; or
- deviations from full, true, and plain reporting of TRIMCO's financial condition.

Duties to stakeholders

Deal fairly with TRIMCO's stakeholders.

You must deal fairly with TRIMCO's security holders, customers, suppliers, communities in which we operate, other stakeholders and competitors. To preserve our reputation and relationship with stakeholders, do not engage in any illegal or unethical conduct.

Communications and media

Use TRIMCO's various forms of communication properly and appropriately.

All business matters that involve electronic, written communication must be conducted by employees on TRIMCO's email system or through other systems provided and approved by TRIMCO. You must always use our e-mail, Internet, telephones, and other forms of communication appropriately and professionally. While we appreciate the need for limited use of these tools for personal purposes, any such use should not be excessive or detract from your work. As outlined in the summary of the CoC's principles, electronic communications relating to business activities may not be conducted through electronic communications system that have not been specifically approved for business activities, including (among others) personal email accounts, personal text messaging, non-approved chat forums and social media.

Employees should not email business information to their personal email accounts or maintain a copy of business information on their personal computers or other non-work electronic devices. When using company-provided technologies, such as computers, cell phones and voicemail, you should not expect that the information you send or receive is private. Your activity may be monitored to ensure these resources are used appropriately and comply with TRIMCO's policies, laws, and regulations.

Be cautious in your use of social media.

You are a representative of TRIMCO when engaging in online activities and you must ensure that your behavior online, including on SoMe, is appropriate and consistent with our values. Please read TRIMCO's SoMe Guidelines for Employees for further information.

Do not speak on behalf of TRIMCO unless authorized to do so.

It is important to ensure our communications to the public are:

- timely;
- full, true, and plain; and
- consistent and broadly disseminated in accordance with all applicable legal and regulatory requirements.

You may not make public statements on Trimco's behalf unless you have been designated as a "Spokesperson."

If a shareholder, financial analyst, member of the media or other third-party contacts you to request information, even if the request is informal, do not respond to it unless you are authorized to do so. In this event, refer it to your manager or forward it to an individual at TRIMCO employed in investor relations or communications.

Conflicts of interest and personal behavior

Exhibit personal behavior that reinforces a positive image of you and TRIMCO.

Your personal behavior, both inside and outside work, should reinforce a positive image of you, TRIMCO and its business activities. It is essential to use good judgment in all your personal and business dealings. You should refrain from engaging in activities that could hurt TRIMCO's reputation, or yours, and that could undermine the relationship of trust between you and TRIMCO or TRIMCO and its customers. Employees who have acted inappropriately may be subject to disciplinary action up to and including termination for cause.

Remember your duties to TRIMCO when participating in outside personal interests; obtain permission before pursuing business activities outside the scope of your role with TRIMCO.

TRIMCO encourages directors and employees to be active participants in their community. While pursuing personal, political, not-for-profit activities or other like activities, be mindful that your participation in any outside interest must not prevent you from adequately discharging your duties to TRIMCO and should not conflict with or otherwise be adverse to TRIMCO's interests. In addition, ensure that when you are involved in these activities you are not seen to be speaking or acting on behalf of TRIMCO without express authority.

"Outside Business Activities," otherwise known as "OBAs" include any business activities outside the scope of one's role with TRIMCO, including any activity as an employee, independent contractor, sole proprietor, officer, director, or partner of another business organization, regardless of whether compensation is involved. Employees must receive approval from their manager. Directors of TRIMCO must advise the Chair of their Board of Directors prior to taking on any OBAs. Prior approval is not required to serve on boards of charities or small, private family holding companies that have no relation to TRIMCO. For greater clarity, approval is not needed to serve on the board of a family holding company which is an extension of one's personal business affairs; however, it is needed to serve on the board of a private operating business with significant operations. If in doubt whether you need to obtain permission, consult with your manager.

Avoid situations in which your personal interests' conflict with the interests of TRIMCO, its clients or investors in client accounts.

A “conflict of interest” for this purpose occurs when a person’s private interest inclines the person, consciously or unconsciously, or appears to incline the person to act in a manner which is not in the interests of TRIMCO. You may have a conflict of interest if you are involved in any activity that prevents you from performing your duties to TRIMCO properly, or that may create a situation that could affect your ability to act objectively, effectively and in the best interests of TRIMCO, including due to among other things, personal interests or receipt of benefits from our relationships with companies, business partners, counterparties, investment banks, brokerage firms, service providers, and other constituencies. Accordingly, you must place TRIMCO’s interest in any business matter ahead of any personal interest. Remember that TRIMCO’s interest includes TRIMCO’s obligations to its customers.

You may also have a conflict of interest or the appearance of a conflict of interest because of a “close personal relationship” with another employee at TRIMCO or a counterparty with which TRIMCO is engaging (e.g., a company employee’s spouse works at an entity that is being considered as a service provider). To ensure that these relationships are managed appropriately, and to deal with any conflicts of interest in an appropriate and responsible manner, you are expected to disclose the existence of such relationships to the HR department.

For the purposes of the CoC, a close personal relationship includes, but is not limited to, relationships with a parent or parent equivalent (e.g., adoptive parent), close relative or friend, spouse, fiancée, common law, or anyone else with whom you are in, or have been in, a romantic or intimate relationship.

The best way to judge whether you may have a conflict of interest is to ask yourself whether a well-informed person would reasonably conclude that your interest, activity, or close personal relationship could in any way influence your decision or performance in carrying out a duty on behalf of TRIMCO. To avoid conflicts of interest, identify potential conflicts when they arise; contact the HR department if you are unsure whether a specific interest or activity gives rise to a conflict situation or contact HR to disclose any close personal relationship that may give rise to a conflict. Directors should consult with the Chair of their Board of Directors on conflicts matters. In addition, if you become aware of any conflict or potential conflict of another director, officer, or employee, you should consult HR or the Chair of your Board of Directors, as appropriate.

Do not take corporate opportunities as your own personal opportunities.

You are prohibited from taking personal advantage of a business or investment opportunity that you become aware of through your work at TRIMCO. You owe a duty to TRIMCO to advance its interests when the opportunity arises, and you must not compete with TRIMCO in any way.

Positive work environment

Be committed to our respectful work environment free from discrimination², violence³ and harassment⁴.

We value diversity and we should all do our part to maintain a respectful work environment where everyone feels safe, included, and productive. TRIMCO does not tolerate workplace discrimination, violence, or harassment. All directors, officers and employees must work to ensure that TRIMCO is a safe and respectful environment where high value is placed in integrity, fairness, and respect.

You have a duty to report discrimination, violence, and harassment.

If you experience or become aware of what you believe to be discrimination, violence, or harassment, you are expected to report it in accordance with the "Reporting Breaches of the CoC" section. Reports of discrimination, violence or harassment will be taken seriously and investigated. If you are found to be discriminating against, acting, or threatening to act violently towards, or harassing any individual at TRIMCO, or if you knowingly condone the discrimination of, violence towards, or harassment of another individual, you will face corrective action up to and including termination without notice and for cause.

We want to create a culture of reporting when it comes to discrimination, violence, and harassment, as reporting is essential for us as a company to stamp out these behaviors. While we reserve the right to take corrective action if you knowingly make a false accusation about an innocent party, you will not face retaliation for making a good faith report or assisting in the investigation of a report.

Be committed to ensuring the health and safety of fellow directors, officers, and employees.

We all have the right to work in an environment that is safe and healthy. In this regard, you must:

- comply strictly with all occupational, health and safety laws and internal procedures;
- not engage in illegal or dangerous behavior, including any acts or threats of violence;
- not possess, distribute or be under the influence of drugs or alcohol while on TRIMCO's premises or when conducting company business; and
- not possess or use weapons or firearms or any type of combustible material in TRIMCO's facilities, or at company-sponsored functions.

² "Discrimination" means the differential treatment of an individual or group based on prescribed characteristics protected by law. Prescribed characteristics generally include age, color, race, religion, sex, gender, marital status, ancestry, sexual orientation, national origin, disability. It does not matter whether the discrimination is intentional; it is the effect of the behavior that matters.

³ "Violence" means an action (oral, written or physical) which causes, is intended to cause, could reasonably be interpreted as a threat to cause, or is capable of causing death or bodily injury to oneself or others, or property damage.

⁴ "Harassment" means conduct which is known or ought reasonably to be known to be unwelcome and includes conduct (e.g., comments and actions) which would be perceived by a reasonable person as being hostile, humiliating or abusive or cause him/her torment. Harassment covers a wide range of conduct and includes sexual harassment, bullying and psychological harassment. Harassment may occur in a variety of ways and may, in some circumstances, be unintentional, but regardless of intent, all harassment negatively affects individual work performance and our workplace as a whole.

If you or someone you know is in immediate danger of serious bodily harm, first call local law enforcement authorities and then report the incident in accordance with the “Reporting Breaches of the CoC” section.

Human Rights and Modern Slavery

We are committed to conducting business in an ethical and responsible manner, including by carrying out our activities in a manner that respects and supports the protection of human rights through:

- the elimination of discrimination in employment;
- the prohibition of child and forced labour; and
- the eradication of harassment and physical or mental abuse in the workplace.

We strive to embed these standards into all our core business activities, including training, communications, contracts, and due diligence processes. These practices extend to our interactions with our key suppliers and other business partners. For more information, please read our Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Act Statement accessible here: Compliance & sustainability - Trimco Group \(trimco-group.com\).

- Mitigate the impact of our operations on the environment
 - Strive to minimize the environmental impact of our operations and improve our efficient use of resources over time.

Compliance with laws, rules, regulations, and policies

Know and comply with all laws, rules, regulations, and policies applicable to your position.

Our business is highly regulated, and TRIMCO is committed to complying with applicable laws, rules, regulations, and policies (collectively “rules”). Each of us must recognize our personal obligations as individuals, to understand and comply with the rules that apply to us in the conduct of our duties.

Many of TRIMCO’s activities are governed by rules that are subject to change. If you have questions about the applicability or interpretation of certain rules relevant to your duties at TRIMCO, you should consult with Legal & Compliance. In the event a local law, custom or practice conflicts with this CoC you must adhere to whichever is most stringent. If you know of any of our practices that may be illegal, you have a duty to report it. Ignorance of the law is not, in general, a defense to breaking the law. We expect you to make every reasonable effort to become familiar with the rules affecting your activities and to comply with them. If you have any doubts as to the applicability or interpretation of any of the above, you should obtain advice from Legal & Compliance.

Do not give or receive bribes, including “facilitation payments⁵.”

We value our reputation for conducting business with honesty and integrity. It is vital for us to maintain this reputation as it generates confidence in our business by our stakeholders, which ultimately means it is good for business. We do not pay bribes in furtherance of our business, either directly or indirectly, and you are not permitted to pay bribes on our behalf or authorize others to pay bribes on our behalf. This commitment comes from the highest levels of management, and you must meet this standard. A bribe is anything of value that is offered, promised, given, or received to improperly influence a decision or to gain an improper or unfair advantage in promoting, enhancing, obtaining, or retaining business. Bribery may not always be in the form of cash payments and may take many other forms, including gifts, travel, hospitality, political contributions, charitable donations, lobbying payments, sponsorships, employment opportunities, internships, and secondments. Facilitation payments are also a form of bribe and are therefore not permitted. For further details, please read TRIMCO’s Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption Policy.

Giving or receiving gifts/entertainment should be reasonable and is in certain cases prohibited.

Gifts and entertainment given to or received from persons who have a business relationship with TRIMCO are generally acceptable, if the gift or entertainment is modest in value, appropriate to the business relationship, and does not create an appearance of impropriety. No cash or cash equivalent payments should be given or received, except in limited circumstances preapproved by the management. Employees who do not comply with these requirements may be required to reimburse TRIMCO for the value of any gifts or benefits they make or receive on behalf of TRIMCO and may be subject to disciplinary action up to and including termination for cause. For further details, please read TRIMCO's Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption Policy as well as TRIMCO's Gift, Entertainment and Hospitality Policy.

⁵ Facilitation payments are small payments made to secure or speed up routine actions or otherwise induce public officials or other third-parties to perform routine functions they are otherwise obligated to perform, such as issuing permits, approving immigration documents or releasing goods held in customs. This does not include legally required administrative fees or fees to fast-track services.

There may be restrictions on your political donations to candidates and political parties.

Political donations made on behalf of TRIMCO are prohibited. Political donations made by individuals on their own behalf should comply with local laws and regulations.

We must prevent the use of our operations for money laundering or any activity that facilitates money laundering, the financing of terrorism, or other criminal activities.

TRIMCO is strongly committed to preventing the use of its operations for money laundering, the financing of terrorism, or other criminal activities, and will take appropriate actions to comply with applicable anti-money laundering laws.

You should consider your rights and obligations when providing information to governmental authorities.

Either during or following your employment or directorship at TRIMCO you may be contacted by governmental authorities (e.g., law enforcement, securities regulators, etc.) who are seeking confidential information from you which you obtained through your association with TRIMCO.

Whether you can respond to these questions or not, we strongly recommend that you do not speak with authorities without first consulting with your manager. This is for your own protection.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in the CoC prohibits or restricts you in any way from providing information to a government authority pursuant to applicable whistleblowing regulations.

In the event you are convicted of a felony or misdemeanor, you have internal reporting obligations.

We are only as good as our people, and therefore our reputation depends on the reputation of the individuals who serve TRIMCO as a director, officer, or employee. Our screening process at TRIMCO is rigorous and includes background checks so that we have the best information possible about our prospective directors, officers, and employees. Once at TRIMCO, we expect you to continue to adhere to these principles of openness, honesty, and transparency. If at any time while you are associated with TRIMCO you are convicted of a felony or misdemeanor (or been subject to any similar conviction in any jurisdiction) or are involved in any conduct that you think may be relevant to your reputation, you have an obligation to report this information to HR, Legal & Compliance, or your manager so that it may be appropriately documented internally.

REPORTING BREACHES OF THIS COC

You are expected to make good faith reports.

Internal reporting is critical to TRIMCO's success, and it is both expected and valued. You are required to be proactive and promptly report any suspected violations of this CoC, or any illegal or unethical behavior or misconduct that you become aware of or involved with.

When making a report, include specific details and back-up documentation where feasible to permit adequate investigation of the concern or conduct reported. Vague, nonspecific, or unsupported allegations are inherently more difficult to pursue.

Employees are expected to report actual or potential misconduct or violations of the CoC through TRIMCO's usual communication channels, which in the first instance would be to your line manager, as your manager is in the best position to resolve the issue. Alternatively, you may report to your manager's manager, HR, or Legal & Compliance. Directors should promptly report to the Chair of their Board of Directors.

In the event you do not wish to use the usual communication channels, you can always make a report through TRIMCO's whistleblower scheme, Ethic's Hotline, which is managed by a third-party and allows for anonymous reporting of suspected violations. Find contact for Ethic's Hotline under "Contact".

If you have any questions, please contact Legal & Compliance.

Reports will be kept confidential and will be dealt with appropriately.

The confidentiality of reported violations will be maintained to the fullest extent possible, consistent with the need to conduct an adequate review and subject to applicable law. You may wish to identify yourself to facilitate our investigation of any report; however, you can make an anonymous report by using Ethic's Hotline. The party receiving the initial report must record its receipt, document how the situation was dealt with and file a report with internal audit, which will be retained for the record.

Non-retaliation.

We do not accept any form of retaliation or retribution against any person who has filed a report on the reasonable good faith belief that a violation of the CoC has occurred or may in the future occur; however, making a report does not necessarily absolve you (if you are involved) or anyone else of the breach or suspected breach of the CoC.

TRIMCO reserves the right to discipline you, up to and including termination for cause, if you provide false information or make an accusation you know to be untrue. This does not mean that the information that you provide has to be correct, but it does mean that you must reasonably believe that the information is truthful and demonstrates at least a possible violation of the CoC. If you believe that you have been unfairly or unlawfully retaliated against, you may file a report with your manager, HR, Legal & Compliance, or by using Ethic's Hotline.

We expect all employees to feel empowered to speak up against breaches of this CoC and all company leaders and managers to lead by example by upholding a strict non-retaliation approach and protection of reporters.

DISCIPLINARY ACTION FOR POLICY VIOLATIONS

Please note that we reserve the right to take disciplinary action(s) for CoC violations that fits the nature and particular facts of the violation. This could, in the most severe circumstances, include immediate termination for cause and, if warranted, legal proceedings may be brought against you.

STATEMENT OF COMPLIANCE

Upon starting at TRIMCO, each director, officer, employee and temporary worker who is subject to this CoC will be provided with a copy of the CoC and policies referred to herein and is required to sign an acknowledgement. The acknowledgement is maintained by HR and Legal & Compliance. On an annual basis, each director, officer, employee and temporary worker who is subject to this CoC will be required to re-certify compliance with the CoC.

Annual execution of a Statement of Compliance with the CoC and policies referred to herein or an annual certification of the CoC shall be a condition of your continued directorship, employment or engagement with TRIMCO.

TRIMCO also reserves the right to interpret and amend the CoC and these policies in its sole discretion. Any amendments to the CoC will be disclosed and reported as required by applicable law.
